

NEW-YORKISMS.

From Our Own Correspondent.

NEW YORK, June 9, 1869.

If, as I did, you could have watched City Hall yesterday afternoon, at about one, from a window opposite it, you would understand what it is for several hundred people to "sit up and get up." That sharp shower of hail and rain, depopulated the road-stools seats, and dispersed the loafers who are always prowling there in a laughably short space of time. Apple stands and newspaper stalls were whisked away with an impetus that raised a cloud of apples, cigars, candies, dates, bananas, raspberry lemonade, and comic weeklies, and improvised a feast for the rapacious gnomes that infest the Park borders. What are we coming to, I wonder, meteorologically speaking? If we could only have the climate, like the Constitution, overhauled and the weather reconstructed? Are we never to feel sure, with the middle of June upon us, that we may go out in white duck and sombrero in the morning, without feeling the need of a shawl and a skating-cap before night? It seems not.

The steamship Tybee is the name of another phantom ship that was supposed to be leaving this port with the intent of carrying "to Cuba." She was to have left the day before yesterday, but as the captain went to clear at the Custom House he was informed that the Spanish Consul had entered a protest against her leaving, having cause to believe that she was loaded with arms and ammunition for the rebels. When the matter came to be investigated, it was proved that she could accommodate at most no more than a hundred persons, and that her armaments consisted of one rusty iron cannon and a few cases of muskets that would scarcely serve to equip a company. Collector Grinnell ordered the investigation, and nothing very frightful or suspicious being discovered, she was allowed yesterday morning to take out her clearance papers, and sailed about noon. It is said that she took out with her Mr. B. P. Hunt, of Philadelphia, on a futile mission to St. Domingo.

Julia Feder, a tall, slim, freckled blonde, whose dispositions are very good and far in advance of her ability, has been dancing for some weeks at Wood's Museum without pay. She has not taken well: is not beautiful like Bonfanti, or strong like Sangali, and is not to be mentioned beside either of those young ladies as a danseuse. But being an industrious, well-disposed, hardworking young woman, that is no reason why she should not be paid her salary. Hotel bills, carriage fare (was there ever a premiere danseuse supposed to be without her carriage?), and a number of other little arrangements not being obtainable in this city without a little money, Miss Feder has added herself as another to the list of demurelles compelled to appear in court. She entered her complaint in the Marine Court yesterday, and Judge Gross granted her an attachment against the property of the defendants, who are the owners of enough handsome costumes to equip several corps of Julia Feders. Think of the agony of turning pirouettes evening after evening, not knowing all the while where you are to obtain the wherewithal to pay cabby who is waiting outside. Is it any wonder that the bouquets thrown to our dancers are sold again at the side door, or that any other monstrosities of equal magnitude should be perpetrated?

The 7th Regiment, who are the best-paid men on this continent, and capable of making really a fine display, visited Prospect Park, Brooklyn, yesterday, for drill in the school of the battalion. Whenever the appearance of the 7th Regiment is announced here, the streets present the appearance of a public holiday. Every clerk and store-girl who leave their posts plant themselves on the curb-stone, and Broadway and the entire line of route is fringed with a deep (and expensive) trimming of humanity. The drill lasted from half-past 10 until 2, and Prospect Park was thronged with as many carriages, whose occupants were bursting to witness it, as though a race had been on hand. The display wound up with a review of the regiment by Brigadier-General Mesrobian, who has "under the eye" of having for many years carried a musket as a subaltern. There is much canvassing of the question whether the 7th still retains its supremacy as the "crack" regiment of the day; but the ovation of yesterday proved that it has not very far receded from its long-established position as a "military hierarchy."

Few questions occupy a larger space in the New York papers than the woman question. The ladies, of whom Mrs. Stanton is the head-center, cannot complain that they are not talked enough of at present. They have raised themselves to that point at least. They may be snubbed, but they are no longer unnoticed; they may be abused, but they are not treated with indifference. And they are as industrious as bees, although, like bees, they do a great deal more buzzing than business—more, in fact, than is always agreeable. The latest Sorosis kink is a hospital for the benefit of members. This is taking time by the forelock, indeed. The last time I saw any large collection of members of the Sorosis, I thought them quite a healthy looking drove, healthier looking than most of the men who thrust themselves in and whom they as constantly endeavored to "shake." Why the Sorosis should desire a hospital at this early stage in their history is what I can't understand, except upon the general principle that they want all they can get. Mrs. Croly, who presided, and who, for a woman, has the wit to write so well, and the tact and the subject of costume, one who is therefore presumed to know something of the principles of taste in dress, stated the design of the hospital in a very rambling manner. Her style of delivery I should term the turnstile, for it goes round and round upon a pivot without making any progress.

The friends of the late Mr. Seymour, the musical and theatrical editor of the Times, are making strenuous exertions to benefit his wife and children by means of a double concert to be given next Saturday afternoon and evening at Steinway Hall. The artists who have "promised" are from all quarters of the city and country, but we all know that public singers possess mysterious arrangements known commonly as throats, and that those throats are liable to derangement at the slightest of all wrong times. Parepa has promised, and among Parepa's faults is not a propensity to disappoint the public. I am not sure that the New York Times has appeared at her own benefit so often, of late, that I fear she has no voice to spare for that of others.

After all, Fisk's "feed" to the newspaper people of New York was not so extensive and nice as I thought it was going to be. All the English blondes in New York were on the boat, and consequently Mr. Fisk had so many irons in the fire that he handed the newspaper people over to his clerks, who gave them plenty to eat, but not a drop of the "rosy." The champagne was so exorbitantly high that it was not apparent in a liquid shape at all. The blondes behaved themselves very well. Lydia was not there, having been detained at home by the composition of a letter to the Times in defense of her manager, Mr. Henderson. The gentlemen whom Mr. Fisk was expected to entertain would have been better pleased if they had not been left to entertain themselves. The trip to Taunton was as pleasant as it could be under these circumstances, and there was a good deal of social enjoyment, in a quiet way, in the state-room at night. In all quarters of the New York Times, men, women and children were undergoing rehearsals for the Mammoth Peace Jubilee, to come off next week in Boston, and which, by some remote possibility, you may have heard of.

The first message of Mayor Hall recommends that three new railroads should be built, one of which, at least, should be central and underground. He thinks it is quite time the city should be thirty minutes instead of twelve miles long, and proposes the adoption of every means that shall neutralize the attraction of the suburban magnets and induce a large proportion of the two hundred thousand souls that dwell there, but do business in New York, to make their home here as well. ALI BABA.

THAT SPOT.

A spot on the sun! well, what of that?

Why, it's big and black as our Sunday hat!

And it may be the cause, for aught we know, Of a pleasanter temperature here below.

But it looks just now, for all the world, Like MARY'S SUNSHINE, SAID, so whirled On its wheels around (not the wheels of the sun)

That you look in the door, when the lock's undone, And speaking of locks, the old Gordian knot Was a mere child's toy to the puzzle we've got; Alexander would jump in the river Styx If he saw the ingenious device we fix To vanquish the robber of modern times, And lock up our eyes, and dollars, and dimes;

Then once he might, that globe so small He should never be able to conquer at all. If you want a safe—and who wants it not?—Go to MARY'S GREAT WAREHOUSE; that's the spot. No. 721 Chestnut street.

CHURCH BELLS.—We gladly make room for the following letter from the Building Committee of a new Method. at Chestnut and Market, Ohio. It is, however, only a sample of hundreds of similar testimonials received from all parts of the country, and proves that the high reputation of Fulton, Son & Co.'s bells, long since earned, is still maintained, and that the last products of their foundry are, like the former, of such excellence as to defy competition.

OFFICE OF W. S. MCGOWAN & CO., GENERAL FORWARDING AGENTS AND COMMISSION MERCHANTS, FORT MONMOUTH, O. May 25, 1869.—Messrs. A. Fulton, Son & Co., Gentlemen: Several months since I was delegated to buy a large bell, 380 pounds, for the Sixth Street Methodist Episcopal Church of our city, and having noticed for several years all of the fine-tuned bells on the steamboats landing at our wharf from the Fulton foundry, I at once decided to give you the preference. The bell cast by you for us has now been in use several months, and is entirely satisfactory. For such mellowness of tone and volume of sound it has no equal in this part of the State. One of the city churches well cracked their bell, and having sent to your city for one of your bells, and another church will do likewise shortly. We take pleasure in recommending your bells to all inquirers, feeling confident that they will recommend themselves wherever introduced.

Please accept this unqualified expression, and refer to our bell with confidence. Yours, etc., W. S. MCGOWAN, of Building Committee, Sixth Street M. E. Church.

—From the Philadelphia Gazette.

A BURGULAR PROOF SAFE.—The First National Bank, on Tuesday, placed in their vault one of MARY'S & CO.'s Burglar-Proof Safes, which was purchased from their agent, Mr. Henry Herman, formerly of this place.

The safe was sold to the Bank subject to such test as the Directors saw fit to put it to. They invited machinists and others to try their hands at safe breaking and boring. The Bank employed Major Kipley, one of the best machinists in this section of the country, to "drill the safe if possible." The Major, with the assistance of his son, spent several hours in preparing his drills and tools, and having secured strong leverage, went to work, and after entirely using up his drills, and hardly making an impression on the safe, gave his opinion that drilling through, inside of two weeks, was out of the question.

The safe was then attacked with heavy sledges. Messrs. South, Blumeyer & Co. were called upon for three of their best Blacksmith Strikers, who were furnished with heavy sledges. After placing the safe in the middle of the sidewalk, where they commenced whacking away in regular force, dealing blows that were heard for squares, but with no effect on the safe. It may be imagined with what strength they dealt their blows, when they were sufficient to crack the sledge and render it useless. The trial created an excitement, and all were satisfied that a Burglar-Proof Safe had at last been found.—York Democratic Times.

HOME QUESTIONS FOR THE SICKLY AND DEBILITATED.—Is it worth while to endure painful torture after every meal, when indigestion can be immediately relieved and permanently cured by so agreeable a remedy as HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS?

Does it pay to be compelled by debility and languor to abandon business, when brain, nerve and muscle can be braced up, and the whole system restored to a healthy condition, by a course of HOSTETTER'S BITTERS?

Why approach the dinner-table daily with a positive disgust for all that is savory and delicious, when a vigorous appetite for even the plainest fare is created by the use of HOSTETTER'S BITTERS?

Is it wise to live in this bright world as if it were a dungeon, gloomy, discontented, and miserable, when the worst case of hypochondria can be cured in a week by such a pleasant and wholesome exhilarant as HOSTETTER'S BITTERS?

Can it be possible that any person of bilious habit will run the risk of remittent fever or bilious colic, when he can tone and regulate the great secretive organ with HOSTETTER'S BITTERS?

Is it not a species of moral insanity for any merchant, farmer, mechanic, or traveler to be without the best known antidote to the effects of poisoned air and impure water, HOSTETTER'S BITTERS?

Considering the harassing and depressing nature of the functional derangements to which woman is subject, is it not astonishing that any invalid of the feebler sex should hesitate to seek the certain relief afforded in such cases by the genial operation of HOSTETTER'S BITTERS?

These are questions of deeper interest than any of the political dogmas of the day, and those whom they concern are invited to give them something more than a passing thought.
